

The question:

Is it possible to interview images without this being merely or wholly a process of projecting our own perspectives onto them?

The hermeneutic/decolonising circle in phenomenological research

ONE: We foregrounded processes of describing

It is a matter of describing, not of explaining or analysing.

Description immerses me in the realms of the pre-critical and helps me stay there

In so doing, description progressively dispossess me of preconstituted categorizations and judgments Description teaches me how to attend (and to attend involves positioning oneself in service of another and of a self-showing world)

Description turns things around, inside out, upside down; it expands our vision

TWO: We considered various ways in which description might be practiced

Listing

Transcription

Ekphrasis

Paraphrase

Enactment

Mapping/Drawing

[...]

'Listing' Exercise

Please use this image or one of your own choice THREE: We asked not 'what do I see?' but 'how is the phenomenon showing itself (to me)?

As figure / as ground?

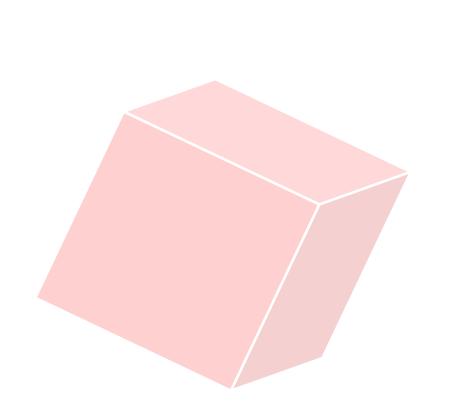

As ambiguous figure?

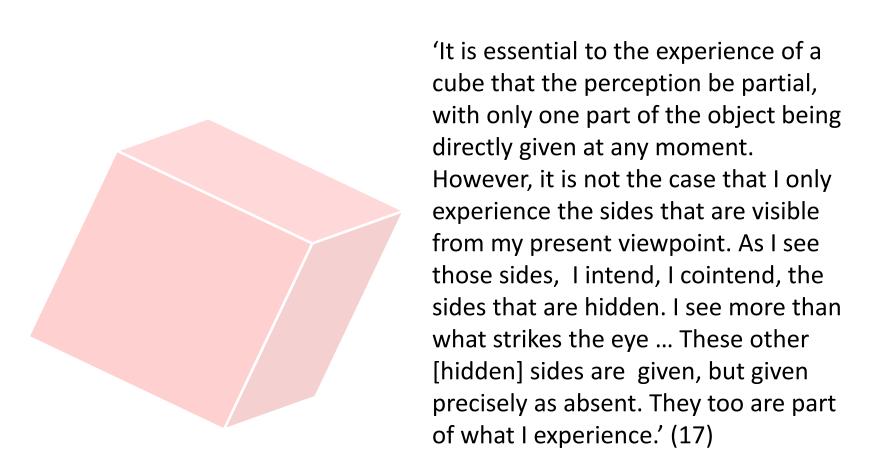

Robert Sokolowski, 'Perception of a Cube as a Paradigm of Conscious Experience', Introduction to Phenomenology, Cambridge: Cambridge University Press [2000], 2008. (17-21)

Robert Sokolowski, 'Perception of a Cube as a Paradigm of Conscious Experience', Introduction to Phenomenology, Cambridge: Cambridge University Press [2000], 2008. (17-21) All experience involves a blend of presence and absence (18)

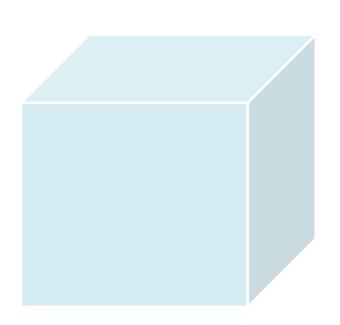

Perception is dynamic; 'the saccadic motion of my eyes introduces a kind of searching mobility (18)

What about the varied modalities of perception (touch, smell, hearing, taste as well as sight)?

'... only vision and touch present the object as a cube; hearing, taste and smell present the material the cube is made of, not its character as being shaped as a cube.' (18)

Blends of presence and absence

Sides

Aspects

Profiles

Sides

can be given to me)

Aspects (the different ways in which the sides of an object private and subjective'

Profiles ('temporally individuated presentations of an object;

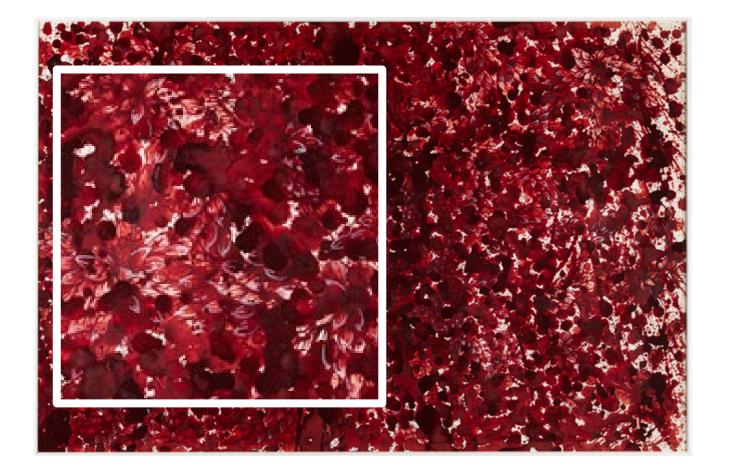

FOUR: We also applied images (and transcriptions of audio-visual material) to the IPA analysis and interpretation grid

EMERGENT THEMES	ORIGINAL TRANSCRIPT	EXPLORATORY COMMENTS
		Descriptive Linguistic Conceptual

EMERGENT THEMES  ORIGINAL TRANSCRIPT  LIST (or turn these prompts  Splatter  Splatter	EXPLORATORY COMMENTS
into a narrative account)  Splatter  Mess  Deep red  Bloody  Coagulation  Forensic scene  Aftermath of violence  Delicacy, too  Drops  Unstructured and chaotic  Foliage	Descriptive  Linguistic (could include: compositional aspects, including figure/ground relationships, use of colour, line, texture, medium/media? Painterly, expressive, linear? Illusionistic? Ambiguous?)  Conceptual

EMERGENT THEMES

ORIGINAL TRANSCRIPT/IMAGE

EXPLORATORY COMMENTS

Descriptive Linguistic Conceptual

EMERGENT THEMES

ORIGINAL TRANSCRIPT/IMAGE

EXPLORATORY COMMENTS

I felt inclined to read the image through a sequence of horizonal scans from left to right — what might this pick up that I hadn't noticed before?

Modulations of red and white; different densities; more open towards the edges; a vertical concentration in the middle;

A sense of its having been folded and unfolded? A piece of textile?, A rug? A prayer mat?

mat?
Horizontalisty and verticality?
A stick figure stepping forward energetically!
A moving on? A possibility of moving forward.
But here the projection issue — anthropomorphising the apparently accidental clusterings of marks?
Having already been made aware of the floral forms: foliage with the white figuring as dapples of light?

Areas of luminosity

Imran Qureshi, You who are my love and my life's enemy too, 2011.

Imran Qureshi, You Who Are U Love and My Life's Enemy Too, 2015, Acrylic paint on canvas, 198,1 x 464,8 cm (78 x 183 in), Courtesy Galerie Thaddaeus Ropac Paris/Salzburg. Photo: Usman Javed

